Good morning! This is Paul Roberts calling. We, that are me and a friend of mine, require your assistance urgently!

Today early in the morning, at about 4.30, together with George, a friend of mine, I left Heineken Pub in 98 Ligovsky Prospect. The weather was cloudy but relatively warm and windless so we decided to walk to our apartment. We were quite sober. We had drunk only 7 or 8 beer mugs per man. We were enjoying our walk when quite of a sudden two men in green police uniform approached us very decidedly. It happened at about 5.40 a.m. somewhere at the crossing of Ligovsky and Nevsky prospects.

Those two men said something in Russian then repeated in English the word “police” several times. After that one of them said in German “handy hoh” and showed us to put up our hands. We were surprised greatly because we didn’t do anything wrong. But we decided to obey the policemen’s demands. They searched us rapidly and let us go without any other word. Then they moved quickly away from us down the street, turned round the corner and disappeared out of our sight.

We felt embarrassed and scared and started to bring our clothes in order after their search. It was then when we found out that our documents, credit cards, car documents and wallets had disappeared.

We wanted to call your security manager immediately but our phones had been stolen too.

So we had to get home first and after that we were able to call you.

We would like to make a report to the police department of having been robbed by two policemen in the center of your city. So we request your assistance.
